What web accessibility means

An accessible website allows people with disabilities to access information and use online features with a level of ease and independence comparable to that available to other visitors. Accessibility may involve site design, content structure, keyboard navigation, and compatibility with assistive technologies such as screen readers.

Accessibility efforts

Our accessibility efforts may include using the Wix Accessibility Wizard to identify potential issues and reviewing the following elements across the websites:

- Setting the language of each website.
- Organizing page content and reading order.
- Using clear heading structures.
- Adding alternative text to meaningful images.
- Reviewing text and background color contrast.
- Reducing unnecessary motion where supported.
- Reviewing videos, audio, documents, and other media for accessibility.
- Checking whether key functions can be used with a keyboard and assistive technologies.

These are ongoing efforts and do not represent a guarantee that every page, file, or feature currently conforms to a particular accessibility standard. We are not claiming full WCAG conformance unless and until an appropriate assessment supports that claim. Where feasible, we will work to identify and address accessibility barriers.

Standards and ongoing review

We use the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (WCAG) as a reference for accessibility improvements. The previous ItalianSmartBuy.com statement referred to WCAG 2.0 Level A. This shared statement does not claim that all eight websites conform to WCAG 2.0 Level A or any other conformance level, because a current assessment of every site has not been provided. We will update this statement as assessments and improvements are completed.

Third-party content and services

Some pages or functions may depend on third-party content, applications, embedded media, maps, event tools, directories, or services that we do not fully control. These components may present accessibility barriers. We will consider reported issues and, where feasible, work with the relevant provider or offer an alternative way to obtain the information or complete the task. The presence of third-party content does not mean that we will disregard an accessibility concern.

Accessibility arrangements and alternative assistance

Depending on the website and service, interactions may take place by telephone, video conference, email, online forms, or in person. For ItalianSmartBuy.com, property visits and meetings in Italy may take place at properties or at offices of local partners. Physical accessibility at a specific property, office, or third-party location depends on that location and should be discussed in advance. Please contact us if you need an alternative way to access information or communicate with our team.

Report an accessibility issue or request assistance

If you encounter an accessibility barrier, need assistance using one of the websites, or have a suggestion for improvement, please contact our accessibility coordinator:
